Forecast for Saturday 01 Apr 2023

Weather: Some light rain or drizzle overnight and early morning with some hill fog but becoming mainly dry during the morning, with cloud gradually lifting. The rain won't be too far away to the west though, so there is a small chance of it returning for a time, when it would be cold enough for sleet or snow flurries on the summits.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 700m: 20% early hours rising 60% in morning and 80% in afternoon, falling 40% later in evening.

Low cloud and visibility: Overcast, with cloud bases around 500m at first gradually lifting to 800m in morning and above summits at times in afternoon before lowering in evening. Underneath the cloud, visibility perhaps poor at first in any drizzle but becoming generally good through the day.
